

Hafesa Group makes the first fuel deliveries to the Spanish Navy

Hafesa Group, the holding company dedicated to the distribution and marketing of petroleum products, has carried out the first fuel deliveries to the Spanish Navy through the ports of Ferrol and Cartagena on December 9th. This operation is part of the contract that the company signed with the Spanish Navy on March 9th, 2021. The agreement with the Spanish Navy, lasting one year and valued at 16 million euros, was signed in order to guarantee a steady supply of distilled naval diesel. Demand will be fulfilled gradually, and the next delivery will be made before December 31st 2021 in the Port of Cartagena.

Hafesa currently boasts 29 storage tanks and a capacity of 398,000 cubic meters, which will increase substantially in the coming years. With their hydrocarbon trading operations, their storage and distribution activities and their expansion into new areas of activity such as solar energy and other renewable energies, Hafesa Group aims to become an energy operator with global presence.
