

Hafesa Group, new member of the CEOE

The company is joining the business organisation to consolidate its expansion plans in Spain over the next few years with the support of the national business network

Madrid, 13 March 2023.- The Hafesa Group, the holding company involved in marketing and distributing petroleum products, has decided to become a member of the Spanish Confederation of Business Organisations (CEOE) to consolidate its future plans and help address the multiple challenges facing Spain, especially sources of energy supply.

Joining the Confederation reaffirms the Hafesa Group's commitment to continue contributing to the development and growth of the Spain's business networks with actions and activities in line with CEOE's mission. It also increases its synergies with different economic sectors, promoting the horizontal role played by energy supply. The Hafesa Group also aims to take an active part in the Confederation's activities and working groups.

According to Javier Calderón, the CEOE's Director of Businesses and Organisations, "It is necessary to have companies like the Hafesa Group, which are committed to Spain in their investments and contribute to expanding and strengthening Spanish strategic industrial networks."

Meanwhile, Diego Guardamino, Managing Director of the Hafesa Group, commented that "modern times and society's demands force companies to project themselves based on a specific purpose that allows them to undertake ambitious, long-term plans, maintaining the confidence of all our customers".

"It is vital to have a common position in the energy sector in order to contribute to the economic growth of the country and, therefore, to care for the welfare state, in which energy supply plays a fundamental role," he added.
